Dear Friends,

It was another dry and yet eventful race...

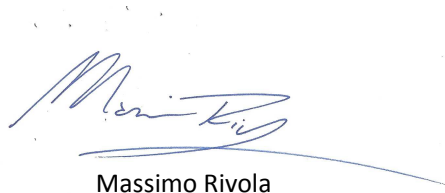

In Spa we had a troublesome weekend. During qualifying, an issue stopped Kimi who had shown a remarkable shape, not only because he was driving on his favourite track where he already won four times, but also because of his well-deserved contract extension to drive for the Rossa next year. Too bad we could not see him fighting for the top places.

Things weren't looking bad at all in the race, and Sebastian would have been a splendid third, thanks to a well-conceived strategy and his ability to manage it skillfully. Unfortunately, it ended up the way we know, and thanks Heaven the tire didn't blow up at Eau Rouge. Today we only rue a lost 15 points in the standings, but a DNF may happen at times and we must look forward with even more determination.

Monza, our home race, is approaching. This year you'll be sitting on the grandstands right before us. No need to say I expect many of you to come on down! And similarly, I look forward to seeing you on Wednesday at the soccer stadium and, even more, on Thursday night at Monza's Villa Reale, where for the first time ever, Ferrari will meet its fans in a truly unique environment. Our Team Principal and drivers will be up there to answer your questions.

I want you to make the first row!

Ciao Jules, Forza Ferrari!
