Dear Friends,

Once again I feel I have to say we could not have achieved any more than we did.

In fact, looking at our performance on Friday and Saturday, I think we did better than expected, especially when you consider that, in terms of the Constructors,' we picked up more points than any other team, in a race we knew would be one of the hardest for us.

Unfortunately, once again this weekend, we must congratulate Sebastian for a win he clearly deserved, particularly when you look at how he created a significant gap in a matter of a few laps after the Safety Car period.

It's hard to find a new way of describing what Fernando is capable of coming up with in the races, with spectacular starts and a race pace that went above expectations, especially when you consider the risky gamble of running one set of Medium tyres for 36 laps, making the most of the opportunity provided by the Safety Car.

Felipe did an equally good job, fighting hard for the whole two hours of this strength-sapping race, which also affects your concentration.

It gives us hope when it comes to ending the season with a good result in the Constructors' championship.

Still believing in the Drivers' one might seem like madness but we have an obligation to believe in it right until it's no longer a possibility and I can assure you that we will not give up fighting right to the bitter end, as that is part of our DNA.

Forza Ferrari!
