Maranello, 13th May 2013

Dear Friends,

It was that close to me being able to say, "more than that we couldn't do..."

But just as we must not get discouraged when times are difficult, so too, we mustn't now start thinking we are halfway there. The season will be long, in fact very long.

We must continue to work with the pressure that comes from knowing we must win, combined with a calm approach from knowing that we can do it.

We saw yet again that qualifying is our Achilles Heel and that's definitely not good news when you consider that the next race is Monaco...

We must press on with maximum effort to try and improve every single detail.

This weekend, apart from anything else, our Technical Director had to undergo emergency surgery in Barcelona. It's all sorted now, but having to get by without him and yet still bring home a great result, means we are growing as a team, because I can assure you that Pat is an essential element for us.

This win should actually be dedicated to all the mothers, as it was their day yesterday, the mothers of all our guys, so many of them travelling the world and yours too, who throughout that world support us with so much passion.

Forza Ferrari!

Always!
