Dear Friends,

We knew this Bahrain race would be particularly difficult for us.

The result and the footage clearly showed our poor top speed down the straights, which was a strong point for the Mercedes powered cars.

In particular, the pace of Hamilton and Rosberg after the Safety Car period was extremely impressive, so congratulations to them for that.

Our driver gave their all and fought tooth and nail, although not for the places that Ferrari is accustomed to. So they did well to push all race long in the hope that an opportunity to do something good might come along.

This week we stay here in Bahrain for two test days with Fernando. The work that lies ahead and I don't just mean at the test, is huge and this doesn't scare us.

It's a difficult moment for sure, but that's when one sees what the team and its fans are made of. I know it, now let's make everyone know it.

Forza Ferrari!
