Dear friends,

In all honesty, this has been the most disappointing race of the whole season so far. We arrived in Canada with a significant upgrade package for the car and Friday's practice produced promising results. On Saturday however, our competitors proved once again their superiority on tracks with these characteristics. In fact, our race pace wasn't too bad and, given that some of the front runners had problems, there was a chance we could do well. We needed to start further up the order, while the lack of top speed which could make the difference and poor traction, which seems to be the main problem with this car, meant we could not fight for a podium finish, even if it seemed so close in Fernando's eyes, who as usual didn't spare one ounce of energy from the car or himself for that matter. Kimi's mistake at Turn 10 says a lot about how the drivers are on the limit in a car that's not easy to drive.

It was a hard blow in a difficult season and one we will only forget once the results start to come. We are aware of what this team represents in the eyes of the world and in your hearts. Hearts that yet again packed the grandstands with red at this circuit that captures the heroic spirit of the man it is named after.

Forza Ferrari, always!
